

ALEXANDRIA.

FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 16.

the salmon fisheries of that river. It is not improbable that more stringent and better executed fishing laws would revive the Potomac fisheries, and prevent the destruction of those of the Columbia river.

THE NEW YORK republicans could possibly have had no other reason for putting Col. Fred. Grant at the head of their State ticket than the fact that he is the son of his father. It is hardly probable that his connection with the late banking firm of Fish and Ward could have induced them to do so.

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the ALEX. GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 16, 1887.

Mr. Barbour was in the city to-day, having returned from a short visit to Baltimore. When asked what he thought of General Mahone's recent attack upon him, he smiled and replied that he had only seen the extract from it published in the GAZETTE, and that though he, Barbour, had never told any body he was a candidate for the Senate, and really did not take much personal interest in politics now as he did some years ago, he thought General Mahone's letter showed that whether he, Mahone, was a candidate or not, he certainly didn't have much hope of being elected.

Senator Ransom is here to-day. He came to have a good democratic named Creech, of Raleigh, appointed mail agent on a railroad running into that city, in place of a republican, and he got what he wanted. A private letter received here from ex-Governor Jarvis of North Carolina, now U. S. Minister to Brazil, says he intends to resign that position and come home. This has revived the rumor that the ex-Governor intends to be a candidate for Senator Ransom's seat in the U. S. Senate, which seat the latter is by no means anxious to vacate.

A pension check originally drawn for $2, which had been raised to $2,450, and which had passed through several banks, was presented to-day for payment at the Treasury Department, where the teller detected the fraud.

It is stated here that Dr. G. K. Gilmer, who was postmaster at Richmond during the Mahone regime, and still a great friend of the General, is of the opinion, and has so expressed himself, that the General's unpopularity in his own party will be the cause of his party's defeat at the coming election. Illinois democrats here say their State committee, following the example of that of Massachusetts, will ask of the department a list of all the federal officers in and of that State, in order that they may show to their party that nearly all of them are republicans.

Senator Colquitt, of Georgia, is here to-day. When asked if there was any foundation for the published statement that he was going to take the place of Secretary Lamar when the latter shall go on the Supreme Bench, he said all he knew about it was what he had seen in the newspapers, that he didn't see why a U. S. Senator should want to accept such a place near the end of an administration, and that certainly he had no desire to do so.

Several of the Washingtonians who attended the Mt. Vernon avenue meeting in Alexandria yesterday were seen this morning, and without exception every one of them seemed to think that the meeting referred to established the project on a firm and enduring basis, and that the bridge at Arlington and the avenue to Mt. Vernon would be in progress of construction before the end of the next session of Congress.

Many democrats here hope Congressman Perry Belmont will be offered and will accept the place of Assistant Secretary of State, in that case his committee, that on Foreign Affairs, will go to Mr. Cox.

A Fairfax county, Virginia, farmer here to-day says the farmers of that county are somewhat alarmed at a disease that has affected some of the cattle near Cloud's mill, in that county, and which they fear is the fatal pleuro-pneumonia.

Personal Encounters.

Two street encounters occurred in Baltimore yesterday afternoon, in which three well-known citizens took part. The first encounter took place in front of the Merchants' Club, German street, between Edwin Warfield, Surveyor of the Port, and Dr. J. Pembroke Thom, ex-Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates. Mr. Warfield had dined at the club and had risen from the table and walked towards the door. Near the entrance stood Dr. Thom, Mr. A. H. Robertson and Mr. William J. H. Waters, a brother-in-law to Mr. Warfield, engaged in conversation. The subject of their talk was the late democratic primaries. Mr. Warfield approached and said:

"Doctor, now you don't really believe that there was anything unfair about the primaries?"

The doctor repeated that he most positively did, and again stated why he thought so. "When my brother ran for the Legislature," said the surveyor, "and was defeated at the primaries, I did not say that they were fraudulent."

"No," retorted Dr. Thom, becoming somewhat excited, "you did not, because you are a slave to a boss."

Mr. Warfield denied that he recognized any one as his boss, and added that he was as free to act as any one in the State. He also said that he did not think that the club was the proper place for talk of that kind. Dr. Thom thereupon replied:

"You're the smallest man in the State. You are as small as a man can grow to be, and if you come outside, I will kick you all over the pavement." Mr. Warfield then passed down the steps behind Dr. Thom, who had walked out ahead of him, and who repeated his language. The doctor under the left eye and followed up the blow with the right, sending him out into the middle of the street, where he fell upon the car track. Friends picked Dr. Thom up, and later he went to his home, in a carriage.

Subsequently Mr. Warfield and Mr. DeCourcy Thom, a son of Dr. Thom, met at the intersection of Charles and Baltimore streets, and words passed between them, when fighting began. Mr. Thom made a pass at Mr. Warfield, and landed a blow on the right side of the face. Mr. Warfield had an umbrella in his hand and he whacked Mr. Thom over the head and badly demolished his hat and also cut his head. Before any real hard fighting could be done, a policeman placed the combatants under arrest. Mr. Thom struck Mr. Warfield once while the officer was trying to separate them. At the station, neither of the principals making any charge against the other, the case was dismissed.

A Philadelphia dispatch last night says: "Gov. Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia, is receiving a great deal of attention. He will be in his glory on horseback to-morrow, and will divide popular admiration with Gen. Sheridan, who is also a remarkably dashing rider. Gov. Lee and Gov. Lloyd are cousins, and the Governor of Maryland is looking for the Governor, as he has something to say to him."

FISH TRAPS have almost entirely destroyed the once famous shad and herring fisheries of the Potomac. Advices from Petersburg show that he pays $433 taxes on property in Petersburg. Of this property $90,000 is composed of bonds, diamonds, &c.

VIRGINIA NEWS.

M. R. Royston, of Norfolk, Fauquier county, died last week.

Col. Green B. Board, president of the board of trustees of Roanoke College and of the Farmers' National Bank of Salem, died at Salem yesterday after a week's illness, aged 72 years.

Twenty-five judgments have been entered during the present session of the Fauquier Circuit Court against taxpayers tendering coupons. It is reported that a restraining order will be asked from Judge Bond to hinder the executions.

Reuben L. Gordon died at his home, in Orange county, on the 13th inst., in the 67th year of his age, after a short illness. He was a son of Gen. Wm. F. Gordon, of Albemarle county, a distinguished lawyer and politician of ante bellum days.

John M. Langston, president of the Virginia Colored Normal and Collegiate Institute, at Petersburg, has accepted an invitation to deliver an address before the industrial Exposition of the Great Northwest, to be held at Minneapolis on the 22d of this month.

The Richmond Granite Company has presented the Lee Monument Association with a granite block for the corner-stone of the Lee monument. The stonecutters, employed on the government work at the custom house here, have offered to put this block in proper shape free of cost. When finished the corner-stone will be three feet square.

The south bound mail train on the Valley Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio was delayed nearly five hours yesterday by a freight engine spreading the rails and getting off the track at Tom's Brook. At the same place on Monday night three freight cars were thrown from the track. The mail service has been very irregular and unsatisfactory for more than a week.

The declaration on the account of illness of Major P. H. Powers, as the democratic nominee for the Legislature, has necessitated the calling of another nominating convention, and chairman Jackson of Warren, and Nelson of Clarke, have fixed upon Berryville as the place, and October 11th as the time for the next convention. In the meantime district meetings will be held to choose delegates to the convention.

The Roxbury Mills, near Fredericksburg, were put up for sale on Tuesday last and cried off to Mr. J. A. Pendleton for $1,427. Soon after the sale was over Mr. Coleman put in an upset bid, followed by another from Mr. Pendleton, which brought the sale up to $1,700 and more. The Lance says it learns that Judge Barton will be asked to fix a reasonable time in which upsetting bids may be received before he confirms the sale of the property.

The marriage of Miss Minnie Minor Beckham to Mr. Geo. W. Settle, of Rappahannock county, took place on the 14th inst. at the residence of the bride's father, John M. Beckham, at Ashland, near Culpeper. Rev. M. L. Roberts, of the Episcopal Church, performing the ceremony. After the ceremony a beautiful collation was served, and Mr. and Mrs. Settle then went to their future home in Rappahannock county.

The fourth exposition of the Loudoun Live Stock Association at Leesburg closed yesterday. The weather was fine, the grounds in good condition, and the attendance of the third and last day fully up to the average. The racing was the main feature of the entertainment and as good as is usually witnessed at a county fair. The first race, four-fifths of a mile and repeat, was won by St. Luke; the hurdle-race, four-fifths of a mile and repeat, over six hurdles, was won by St. John, and the third race, two-fifths of a mile and repeat, was won by Eoline, all three owned by William Garth of Charlottesville. The fourth and last race, the Consolation purse, one mile dash, won by Brookhill, owned by J. W. Bradshaw, of Lynchburg.

A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.—A horrible tragedy occurred at Huntingdon, Md., a place of 100 inhabitants, five miles from Deep Landing, on the Patuxent river, and seven from Prince Frederick. The murderer was Edmund B. Coolidge, a farmer. On Tuesday, as his wife and her sister, Miss Alice Turner were sitting together in the bed room, Coolidge entered with a double barreled shot gun in his hand. Both barrels were loaded. His wife noticed an angry look on his face, and said to him: "Edward, what are you going to do with your gun?" "I am going to kill you!" was his reply. Mrs. Coolidge jumped up from her chair, and rushing at her husband, succeeded in wrenching the gun from his hand. Coolidge then drew a pistol from his pocket and shot her twice. Both bullets took effect, and would have caused her death, but to make doubly sure of his horrible deed, Coolidge sprang upon his wife with a razor, and nearly severed her head from her body.

When he felt convinced that his wife was dead, Coolidge grabbed up his gun from the bed, and taking a lamp in his hand, went down stairs to search for his wife's sister. When he first entered the room she had rushed out and taken refuge at the house of a neighbor. Coolidge searched all through the house, and blood was traced all down the stairs and in the room on the lower floor. He had locked all the doors down stairs before going to his wife's room, and Miss Turner had made her escape through the kitchen window. Not finding her in the house, he returned to the room where the two children were and found them crying. He said to them: "Do not be alarmed, papa will not hurt you, but come into the other room. Don't you want to see papa die?" They would not go, and he returned to the room and laid his gun down again upon the bed. Then taking the razor with which he cut his wife's throat, he drew the sharp blade across his own. While the blood was gushing from the wound he went back to the room where his two little boys were and kissed them good-bye, and lying down on the floor beside his murdered wife, breathed his last.

Death of James Barron Hope.

Captain James Barron Hope, editor of the Landmark, died suddenly from heart disease at his residence, in Norfolk, yesterday. When the attack came on he placed his hand upon his heart, and, without uttering a word, walked to the bed and attempted to open his collar, but fell over and expired. He was subject to attacks of the kind, but yesterday expressed himself as feeling unusually well, and wrote his editorials at an early hour in a very cheerful frame of mind. He leaves a wife and two daughters, both of whom are married.

Capt. Hope was born on the 23d of March, 1829, at the residence of his maternal grandfather, at that time commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, and was consequently in the 58th year of his age. He was graduated from William and Mary College in 1847 with the degree of A. B. After a year spent at Williamsburg in the practice of the law he accepted the position of secretary to his relative, Commodore Samuel Barron, of the navy. In 1850 he fought a duel with J. Pembroke Jones, of Virginia, then a passed midshipman in the navy. At the first fire both fell badly wounded. The difficulty was afterwards adjusted. On the 13th of May, 1857, he delivered the poem at Jamestown on the 25th anniversary of the settlement of Virginia. At the unveiling of the equestrian statue of Washington, by Crawford, on Capitol Square, in Richmond, he pronounced the metrical ode.

Capt. Hope served gallantly in the Confederate army, and was paroled at the capitulation of the forces of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, at Greensboro, N. C. After the war he made Norfolk his residence, and successively edited the Norfolk Day Book under democratic auspices, the Norfolk Virginian, and in 1873 founded the Norfolk Landmark, of which journal he was the head when he died. Mr. Hope published a number of prose and political writings of marked merit, and while he won an enviable distinction as a poet and literature, his mind was also remarkable for its analytical and logical power.

The Leesburg Fair.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

LEESBURG, Sept. 15, 1887.—Our county fair closed to-day. Taken altogether it was one of the finest displays we have ever seen. The horse and cattle departments were especially fine. The entries of Mr. M. B. Rowe, of Fredericksburg, in the stock and poultry departments excited general comment.

Yesterday there was a full attendance; Tuesday light, to-day only fair, but altogether above the average.

Gen. W. H. F. Lee was on the grounds to-day. There may have been other visitors from a distance, but it was not our fortune to meet them, except Frank Kelly, of the firm of Kelly & Carr, Alexandria. Frank has so many friends here, and comes so seldom, that his reception amounts almost to an ovation.

The winners for the first day's races—county horses—were Mr. C. W. Johnston's brown mare Maud, and her races.

Second day—Bothwell, Vexation, Vigilante, and St. John—hurdle.

Third day—St. Luke, St. John, (hurdle) Eoline and Brookhill.

JABEE.

Fairfax Democratic Convention.

Pursuant to call, the delegates elected from the several districts of the county for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the House of Delegates, assembled at Fairfax C. H. September 14. Hon. James M. Love, chairman of the democratic county committee, called the convention to order, and on motion was made permanent chairman, and Geo. K. Pickett, secretary.

Dr. R. I. Simpson was nominated as delegate by acclamation. Mr. J. N. Ballard, who had been mentioned as a candidate, but whose name was not put before the convention, was called on for remarks, and in response said he fully concurred in the unanimous action just made, and that Dr. Simpson was an able man for the place, of unblemished reputation, and he hoped every democrat would make it his duty to elect the nominee as our delegate. O. J. Senatorial nominee, R. W. Moore, esq., also made happy and stirring remarks, congratulating the wisdom of the convention in their choice of Dr. Simpson, and also alluded to Mr. Ballard's generous withdrawal of his name as a candidate, predicting that higher honor awaited him than the position as a member of the House of Delegates. Perfect harmony prevailed in the convention, and all were enthusiastic with the resolve that with Moore and Simpson as our standard bearers old Fairfax must and will elect them as legislators.

J. M. LOVE, Chairman.
G. K. PICKETT, Secretary.

TO-DAY'S TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

The Celebration in Philadelphia.
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—It is computed that there are at least half a million strangers in the city, and during the military parade to-day the streets were almost impassable.

The reception tendered the President by the business men was a success in every particular. Upon the announcement of Mr. Cleveland by President Comly, of the Commercial Exchange, the cheering was vociferous, and it was some moments before Mr. Cleveland could be heard above the din. After quiet had been secured he spoke in a firm and clear voice. He said:

"I am glad to be here to-day and have the opportunity of meeting so large a representation of the business men of Philadelphia. It is well for us not to entirely forget the claims of patriotism in the rush of business life, and such occasions as this are fraught with great good to our common country. The objects of good government tend to increase the material prosperity of the country. It has often occurred to me that in the hurry and rush of business we are apt to forget the claims of good government. It would be well if business men remember that a wholesome political sentiment is closely related to business success. I would be glad to see a little more of a broad patriotic sentiment in the business world. It would be well in striving for the success of the whole nation that a man should sometimes sacrifice his individual interests. To-day we celebrate such a triumph of patriotism over selfishness. Does any one doubt to-day that the constitution of one hundred years ago was well made and that the work was well done? This same condition of affairs, that is, sinking self in patriotism, would exist to-day if our business men would cultivate a wholesome, political sentiment, and sometimes forget self and sordid interests. I believe that nowhere can this sentiment be better established than among the alert, active, enterprising business men of Philadelphia."

After his speech Mr. Cleveland announced himself as being ready to meet the gentlemen present, and one by one they walked up the steps of the rostrum and grasped his hand. After the reception the Presidential party drove to the reviewing stand, at Broad and Walnut streets, to witness the military parade. Nearly thirty thousand uniformed soldiers passed in review before the Chief Magistrate and the high officers of this and other governments. Virginia was represented by Gov. Fitzhugh Lee and staff and a battalion of 300 men.

The Yacht Race.

SANDY HOOK, Sept. 16.—Another attempt was made to-day to sail the first of the trial races between the sloop Mayflower and Volunteer. The Scotch cutter Thistle was all ready to follow the racers over the course, which was twenty miles to leeward and return. The starting signal was given at 11:10 o'clock. The Volunteer crossed the line at 11:14:45 and the Mayflower at 11:14:53. Both yachts started off like race horses, with booms to starboard and spinnakers to port. The Thistle, though not in the race, started two minutes after the Mayflower. The Volunteer at 11:30 was leading by nearly three-quarters of a mile. The wind was then still from the west-northwest and blowing 20 miles an hour.

At 12:15 p. m. the Volunteer was gaining steadily on the Mayflower. The Thistle was fast falling behind. An interesting clinch took place between the Thistle and the schooner N. L. Lockwood on the way out to the lighthouse, in which the Lockwood showed that the Scotch cutter's speed is greatly overestimated. The Lockwood at the start was a mile and a-half behind the Thistle. She gradually overhauled the foreigner, until finally, off the bar, both vessels were sailing on even terms. There is no question but that the Thistle was sailed for all she was worth, as her sails were full all the time.

At 12:35 p. m. the Volunteer was two miles ahead, but the Mayflower was to windward. The Thistle had assumed third place. The wind was from the northwest and was falling slightly.

At 1:20 p. m. the Volunteer was on the last leg of the triangular course, heading for the finishing line. She was leading the Mayflower by about two and a half miles. The Mayflower was a mile ahead of the Thistle.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., Sept. 16.—The Volunteer crossed the finishing line two miles ahead of the Mayflower—winning the trial race.

The Queen's Speech.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Parliament was prorogued to-day. Following is the Queen's speech closing the session:

"My Lords and Gentlemen: My relations with the other powers continue friendly. The protracted negotiations between Russia and myself regarding the frontier which we should agree to recognize as the northern limit of Afghanistan have been brought to a satisfactory termination. The Ameer readily accepted the boundary. I hope the convention will powerfully conduce to the maintenance of a durable peace in Central Asia. The treaty between Great Britain and China with reference to the relations between China and Burmah has been ratified. The confidence hope I expressed that a general pacification of Burmah would be fully realized. A settled government is being gradually introduced in its remotest districts. The convention which was concluded between Turkey and myself for the purpose of defining the conditions under which it would be possible for me to undertake the withdrawal of my troops from Egypt at a fixed date has not been ratified by the Sultan. The course of action imposed upon me by my obligations to the ruler of the people of Egypt remains unchanged. The presence of my forces has secured to Egypt the blessings of tranquility and has enabled me to effectually support the Khedive's efforts to promote good government and the prosperity of his people. I have agreed with the President of the United States to refer to a joint commission the difficult questions respecting the North American fisheries which have recently been discussed by the two nations."

The remainder of the speech was devoted mainly to routine matters.
